

PLEDGE FROM ACTIONAID
GPE Second Replenishment Conference
June 26, 2014

ActionAid pledges to produce citizens' reports in 30 GPE countries by 2018 based on school level collaborative assessments in a cross section of schools in diverse districts in each country. These reports will be based on tracking schools against the right to free compulsory education, the right to non-discrimination, the right to adequate infrastructure, the right to quality trained teachers, the right to a safe and non-violent environment, the right to relevant education, the right to know your rights, the right to participate, the right to transparent and accountable schools and the right to quality learning.

We will support the production of rights based school improvement plans, responsive district plans and national citizens' reports. This will bring new data and evidence into national policy debates, informing Local Education Groups and promoting parliamentary and media debate about the direction of education reform.

We will also place particular emphasis on tracking domestic financing of education goals in line with the agreed post-2015 framework, looking at the breadth of the tax base, the allocation of revenue, the actual spend and the effectiveness of spend at school level, as measured by schools in the poorest areas. Our focus will be on promoting more equitable and accountable education systems.
