If the enrollment rate for secondary schooling is 10% higher than the average, the risk of war is reduced by about 3%.